  - a. Management and Services Career Board. There follows the text of Mr. Brownman's revision of the Board's Charter:
  - (1) To foster and encourage Directorate-wide development of senior personnel, beginning 1 July, the Management and Services Career Board (comprised of the Heads of Directorate Offices and chaired by the ADD/M&S) will be responsible for career matters for all M&S careerists grade GS-16 and above. Particular emphasis will be given to training and inter-Service assignments, as well as promotion rankings. While the primary purpose of this change is the development of broad-gauged managers, full consideration will be given to the development and advancement of non-managerial specialists.
  - (2) The Board will also review and approve all changes of assignment of GS-15 members of the respective component Career Services and all recommendations for promotion to grade GS-15. While the Board will not be responsible for the internal career development practices of the respective Services, it is to be expected that the development of criteria for promotion to grades GS-15 and GS-16 will provide general guidance for the Services headed by the Board members.
  - b. "M" Career Service. Effective 1 July 1973, Mr. Brownman is establishing this career service to include all M&S career employees in grades GS-16 and above. All M&S supergrade officers will be transferred to the new service and all Directorate supergrade positions will be designated "M". Mr. Brownman expects that a career service composed solely of M&S executive talent will better enable him to monitor managerial requirements throughout the Directorate and he intends to use the M Career Service mechanism as a means to strengthen this executive cadre through selective training, rotation and advancement.

c. M&S Advisory Group. Effective 2 July 1973, Mr. Brownman has established an M&S Advisory Group consisting of 10 officers, one from each of the functional offices and one from the "S" Career Service. The purpose of MSAG is to identify and study issues and problems affecting plans, programs and actions of the Directorate and to make recommendations to the DD/M&S. MSAG will seek to improve the efficiency of the Directorate and the over-all environment in which the employee works.
